JANESVILLE, WISCONSIN, MONDAY, APRIL 11, 1910.

START CENSUS TAKING FRIDAY

WORK OF COUNTING POPULATION BEGINS ON APRIL 15.

SEVENTY THOUSAND PEOPLE

Men and Women, White and Colored People, Will Be Engaged in Month-Long Task of Gathering Facts.

Washington, D. C., April 11.—With the week of day on next Friday, the 15th instant, a host of 70,000 interviewers, men and women, white and colored, will be turned loose in pursuit of the people of the United States. On that day these men will begin the numbering of the children in preparation for the 15th census. It is estimated that he has a family of about 90,000,000 men, women and children, and he already has employed and will then put to work a body of enumerators considerably greater than the standing army.

The law provides that the enumeration shall begin on the 15th, but it is not so peremptory about the closing time, and already intimations have been received that in some instances the work may be postponed until Saturday. This is due to the fact that the 15th falls on Friday, and among the 70,000 name-takers there are some who are superstitious as to this day of the week.

The enumeration will cover all of the forty-five states and two territories of the union proper and also Hawaii and Porto Rico, Alaska, the Philippine Islands and Guam will not be included, as special arrangements are made for numbering the people of those dependencies.

Under the statutes governing the work, the entire enumeration must be completed within a month, and in the cities the work is limited to fifteen days. It is expected that some of the returns from the cities will be received as early as the first week in June, but the exact population of the entire country will not be determined before some time in September. The census officials will, however, know within a few thousand of the number long before the close of the summer months. They will be able to reach a substantially accurate conclusion by their pay rolls, but this will be more or less speculative, and the figures will not be given out.

Director E. D. Durand is counting upon a call of not fewer than 90,000,000 people. This estimate is based upon calculations of his experts, and makes allowance for an increase according to the tendencies shown in the last three previous censuses. Between 1870 and 1880 the increase in the population was 30 per cent; between 1880 and 1890, 25 per cent; between 1890 and 1900, 21 per cent. If the decrease should continue at the same rate there would be a falling off this year of the rate of gain to 17 per cent. The immigration figures for the last decade have been greater, however, than for any of the previous ten-year periods. Making all allowance for this augmentation from outside it is calculated that the increase for the past ten years will be about 18 per cent, and as, in round numbers, the figure for 1900 was 75,000,000, it is now calculated that there are about 14,000,000 more.

Mr. Durand is not alone in the showing regarding the purely native increase. The enumerations between 1870 and 1900 show a startling tendency towards "race suicide," and it is Mr. Durand's fond hope that the reports of his 70,000 subordinates may be able to check this apparent decline. Many of the figures that he is, he does not, however, permit his optimism to shade his facts, and until the actual returns show something better, he will hold to his ninety-million estimate.

There will be some innovations in the next census, and they are expected to improve the reports. For instance, the country farmer is to be afforded an opportunity to consider in advance the statements he shall make as to the conditions prevailing with reference to his holdings, and the same advantage is to be given to the owners of their households. Both cases sheets are to be passed around before the official call of the enumerators in the hope that both ruralists and urbanites will be more careful in their returns than otherwise they might be. There also is to be increased care in the supervision of the work of the enumerators. In the cities, supervisors will camp on the heads of the men with the pencils during the first day of their work in the country districts and the sheets themselves will be especially scrutinized.

The inquiry will comprise three principal branches—population, agriculture, and mining and manufacturing. The questions will cover the acreage, the value and the product of farms, including an especial enumeration of animals, as it will the capital invested, the value of products, and the number of employees of mining and manufacturing plants.

The enumerators will want to know a good deal about you for the population volume. They not only will insist upon knowing your sex, but will expect you to reveal your age, and will ask you to tell whether you are white, black, Indian, Chinese, Japanese or single, and if married how often; whether you are American or foreign born, and if the latter, that you give not only your nationality, but your race and mother-tongue. Then, if you are a woman, you are to tell how many children have been born to you; and, in any event, you are to tell about your education, your parentage and your employment. All this information is to be for the general average and for the ear only of one of the enumerators. He is sworn not to reveal any of the awful truths.

The more getting of the information tion will cost the government the pretty sum of $5,500,000. Of this amount $4,500,000 will be paid to enumerators, and the remaining million to supervisors. With a few exceptions the enumerators will be paid on the basis of the work done. In the country the remuneration will be from 20 to 30 cents for each farm reported, while the pay for names will range from two to four cents. The districts will average 1,300 names—1,000 in the country and 300 in the cities. In the southern states there will be two enumerators in each district, one white, and the other black. All told there will be about 1,500 negro enumerators, but some of them will be employed in the northern states. In the south the negroes will be visited by enumerators of their own race, as will also the whites by their own people. These also will be about 500 women enumerators. In point of numbers New York will lead the list with 6,500 enumerators, while Nevada will close the procession with 80.

The results of the labors of this army of people will be published in twelve or fifteen large volumes, which will come out from time to time for two or three years after the completion of the work in the field. All tabulation as well as the general preparation of the matter for the printer, will be done in Washington under Mr. Durand's supervision.

LIQUOR AN ISSUE IN BRYAN'S TOWN

People of Lincoln, Nebraska, are Voting on License Question Today—City Has Been "Dry" One Year.

Lincoln, Neb., April 11.—Before tomorrow morning the people of Lincoln, the largest city in Nebraska, will be able to tell whether they are to continue "dry" or returned to the saloon question follows the fiercest municipal campaign ever conducted in Nebraska. For weeks the contest has been bitterly waged on both sides. Nightly rallies have been held at which prohibition and anti-prohibition speakers of national reputation have been heard.

Lincoln has been without saloons for the past year and the prohibition law has been rigidly enforced. It is argued that if prohibition is turned down at today's election, the saloons located at election, prohibition will be considered a failure and there will be little or no chance for the anti-saloon state campaign to be successful. On the other hand, if prohibition in Lincoln is continued by an increased vote, the state voters will look upon the test as a success and the state will probably go "dry" at the next election.

It is generally conceded that the saloon question will be the chief issue of the approaching state campaign. The Democrats are more or less split over the issue. Governor Shallenberger is with the anti-saloon people, and Mayor George Dahlman of Omaha, who is to be Governor Shallenberger's opponent in the primaries, is for license and a liberal state administration.

Mayor Dahlman, on hearing that William J. Bryan opposed his views on the sale of liquor, promptly announced his opposition to Bryan. Friends of the Governor believe that Dahlman's opposition to Bryan will insure all the rural counties to Gov. Shallenberger in the primaries. Mr. Bryan does not favor statewide prohibition, but has declared for county option. He dislikes the saloon because, aside from his strict temperance beliefs, which are well known, he believes that the brewery and saloon element supported Taft in Ohio, Indiana, New York and Nebraska at the last election, and, on the other hand, supported the Democratic candidates for governor in those states.

The local campaign has not been a party contest, as neither republicans nor Democrats, have, officially, endorsed either side. The canvass was conducted strictly along the lines of "whisky or no whisky" with no distracting issues and has been clean-cut between prohibitionists and the liberal element, and each side conceded that as Lincoln goes today, so will Nebraska go next fall.

IMPORTANT CASES WERE RE-ASSIGNED BY SUPREME COURT

Arguments Against American Tobacco and Standard Oil Companies to Be Heard Later.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, D. C., April 11.—The supreme court of the United States today re-assigned for argument the cases of the United States against the American Tobacco and Standard Oil companies.

The re-assignment of the cases comes as a direct result of the death of Justice Brandeis, who died a few days after the Standard Oil case had been argued. As Justice Moody was unable to participate in the consideration of these cases only seven justices were left to give a decision. How the court was divided in regard to these cases is not known. It is believed, however, that the court was evenly divided and that it probably was loath to give to the country a decision which was not supported by a majority of the full court, which will be five members.

AID DEMOCRATS TO DEFEAT PROVISION

Coalition of Minority and "Speakers' Auto" Bill.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, D. C., April 11.—The coalition between the republican "insurgents" and democrats against the provision in the legislative bill appropriating $2,500 for maintenance of the speaker's automobile resulted in the rejection of that part of the bill by the conference report on the bill by the house today by a vote of 141 to 132.

Speaker Cannon in a notable speech in connection with the proposed appropriation, characterized the democratic leader, Clark, as a false prophet. He declared at the next election he would show Clark to be the same false prophet that he had been every two years.

The speaker again defied the "insurgents" to depose him from the speakership declaring that "unless the republicans who do not approve of the personality of their speaker have courage to join the solid minority I remain speaker until March fourth, next."

NEW ORLEANS GIVES KEY TO SHRINERS

While City Is in Gala Attire for Convention—Reception for Imperial Potentate G. L. Street.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New Orleans, La., April 11.—The city has surrendered to the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine and the latter are in full possession not only of the key to the city, but of everything that goes with it. The holding of the Shriner's convention in New Orleans is a memorable event, as it is the first time since the first council session in 1876 that New Orleans has the opportunity to show its hospitality to the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. In view of this fact Jerusalem Temple, of this city, and the citizens in general have made every effort to give to the visiting Nobles and their families and friends a record-breaking welcome.

The whole city is in gala attire. Decorations are displayed everywhere in great profusion, numerous hand-borne arches, artistically decorated and bearing inscriptions of welcome, span the principal streets at various points and thousands of electric lights are in readiness to shed a brilliant light upon the thoroughfares through which the pilgrims are to march.

The visitors began to arrive here on Saturday, mostly in small parties. They continued to come yesterday and this morning, a regular mass invasion began. Every train brought hundreds of Shriners, many of whom were accompanied by their families. They were received at the stations by delegations of the local Temple and welcomed with brotherly handshakes and the already familiar slogan "Glad-U-Kum." Wherever the visitors went, they heard this slogan and cards and signs of every description, bearing the hospitable greeting, met their eyes.

The Imperial Potentate, George L. Street of Richmond, Va., arrived here this morning and was given a brilliant reception and escorted to the headquarters of the local Temple, the festivities and the afternoon the fun and frolic was in full swing. The afternoon and evening programs include, principally, sightseeing trips through the city and its immediate surroundings. The business session of the convention will not begin until tomorrow and will occupy but a small part of tomorrow and Wednesday, closing with the parade of the Shriner's in the evening. Thursday promises to be the great day of the convention. It will be exclusively to fun and frolic. Promiscuous masking will be permitted all day, from six in the morning until six in the afternoon and it is expected that the streets will be thronged with gay numbers. In the evening will be the grand parade with scores of gorgeous floats and thousands of musketeers and the grand ball at the French Opera, following the parade, will bring the festivities to a close.

Jerusalem Temple has arranged another at the Athenaeum for the same night, to accommodate the overflow from the Imperial Council ball at the opera house. In addition to the entertainment features mentioned there will be patrol drills, receptions and numerous excursions to points of historic interest.

GUESTS ENDANGERED WHEN FIRE DAMAGES HOTEL AT DUBUQUE

One Chicago Man Fatally Hurt and Others Injured in Fifty Thousand Dollar Blaze in the Julien Hotel.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Dubuque, Iowa, April 11.—Fire broke out in the Julien hotel early today while two hundred guests were asleep. In the wild panic which followed a number were badly injured. Sam Levy of Chicago was fatally hurt by jumping from the third story window. Charles Evans of Philadelphia suffered from internal injuries. The fireman rescued the other guests. The interior of the hotel was ruined. The building is valued at three hundred thousand and the loss is fifty thousand dollars.

Frankie guests screamed for aid from the windows of upper stories and were rescued in many instances by heroic firemen. Other guests dived madly down the fire escapes, head first. Mrs. Edward Engler of Dubuque was descending a burning stairway when it gave way and she fell several feet and was badly hurt. Charles Glusker of Des Moines leaped from a balcony and suffered several broken bones besides severe bruises. The origin of the fire is unknown.

TOBACCO STRIKE SITUATION SERIOUS.

Arresting one of the leaders in the tobacco strike, Hazel Spaulding, active strike leader who has become known as the "girl in blue."

tobacco factories and 2,500 employees of the cigar factories. They are demanding higher wages. Twice today the police were called upon to keep the strikers and their followers orderly as they marched from one factory to another. Three arrests were made. While the property of the American Tobacco company has not yet been attacked, and while there has been no concerted outbreak of a magnitude more serious than the throwing of bowlers and the wounding of clubs, there is a fire smoldering in the ranks of the strikers, because they are distraught women, that call for diplomacy and watchfulness on the part of the police and detectives, upon whose shoulders falls the problem of keeping the peace.

Never before in Louisville's history have the police been called upon to cope with such a situation as now faces them. There has been strike leaders, but never before have they had to cope with the wrath of women and a woman leader with her unrelenting tenacity, with her ignorance of all law and with her desperate disregard of all that she believes is adverse to her views. Such a situation is now staring the Louisville police force in the face.

In the ranks of the whites a Joan of Arc, Hazel Spaulding, has been found, while among the blacks, who, though reluctant, may yet join the forces of the white women in spite of race differences, numerous are strikers who, to emulate their white leaders and to satiate a hot-blooded love for revolutionary spirit.

In spite of the police they gathered in groups and the croonings of songs kept the fires burning, even among the negroes who left the factory, as it were, under duress, the spirit that was apparently actuating the whites is taking hold of them.

Team Of Horses Made Mad Dash In The Third Ward Just At Church Time.

But for the bravery of Milford Palmer, a party of six little girls would have probably suffered serious injuries in a runaway at the corner of Sinclair and South Third street on Sunday morning about ten thirty. The team was being driven by a little girl named Hughes and was attached to an open carriage in which were other children. At Milwaukee street the horses became frightened and made a dash south to South Third street, turning west and narrowly missing going to the deep ravine at South Third and Sinclair streets. Milford Palmer, a high school student, bravely rushed to the frightened animals and brought them to a stop and then drove the team back to the Hughes farm for the frightened girls. But for Palmer's brave work the carriage must certainly have tipped over into the ravine and all been injured and perhaps killed.

pices of the Boston Athletic association. The program provides for competitions for all classes, from bantam-weight to heavyweight.

The Husband Explains

She threw the letter on the table and looked over at her husband. "That's just like a woman," she said. "Anybody would suppose that I had been trying to do her a mean trick from the tone of her letter, and I thought I was doing her a favor."

He went right on reading the newspaper, devoting the rest of his attention to his coffee.

"Don't take enough interest in my affairs to read the letter, I suppose," she went on, getting dangerously near the weary stage. "Well, you needn't, then."

"You just tell me what's in it, dear," he said. "That will be sufficient."

She seemed mollified and picked up the rejected letter.

"I can tell you what's in it," she went on. "It's just in answer to what I wrote her about the flat. You know Johnny Smith told me that she would always like to take this flat off our hands if we were tired of it; that she had never seen a flat anywhere so good; that she would regard it as a great favor if we did let her know and that she wanted just such an apartment."

"I did that and now she writes back that she is very appreciative of my offer, but that under the circumstances she thinks she will not be able to take it off our hands, much as she would like to be of service to us. She writes as if I had inspired her to rent it as a great favor to me."

"That's just the way with people when you ask them to do what they have said they are very anxious to do. Once they get the idea that they are doing you a favor, it's just the same thing that happened when I asked the Joneses if they wanted my cook."

"Every time they came to the house last winter they used to rave over Emily. They would be so happy if only they could get such a cook, they said. Yet when I wrote to them that we were giving up keeping house and that they could have her if they wanted, they seemed to be actually embarrassed about the matter, as if they were having a nervous forced on them willy nilly."

He had not indicated any great interest at the beginning, but listened more attentively as his wife's narrative proceeded. Then he put down the paper and began to talk himself.

"Don't you remember the time you bought that old side table at auction and Mary asked you to let her have it if you ever wanted to sell it?"

She nodded.

"Don't you recall how you patronized who was when you told her you thought you might let her have it because you didn't want to crowd your dining room? Surely you have not forgotten how she tried to wrangle out of taking it just as if you were determined to hold her to a bargain."

She admitted that she had not forgotten a detail of this transaction. Then she also admitted how provoked she had been when her cousin Helen had asked her to give her the refusal of her old horse Sally if she decided to sell her when they went to town in the autumn.

"Then how can you," he asked, "with those things fresh in your mind, put yourself in the way of being patronized again in such fashion? You ought to learn that what they do not possess often seems very attractive to persons so long as it remains the property of others. It is quite a different thing when it becomes attainable to them."

"It almost invariably happens that they have ceased to care for it and it is only human nature for them to give themselves the satisfaction of showing the owners that they are now in possession of the situation. So remember that trait the next time you offer to anybody a similar kindness."

A Monkey Trick.

Curator Raymond L. Ditmars, of the New York zoo, was praising the intelligence of monkeys.

"A Philadelphia man," he said, "was hurrying out Powellton avenue one afternoon when, all of a sudden, an organ grinder's little monkey dropped dead. The poor grinder's grief was pitiful. The Philadelphia man, touched, gave him a half dollar and hastened away."

An hour later, returning through Market street, he saw the same organ grinder, and, just as he passed, the monkey again dropped dead, and the grinder's grief was even more pitiful than before.

"The Philadelphia man gave a loud laugh. The grinder, recognizing him, laughed, too, but made no motion to return the half dollar."

Two Sides to Great Actress.

Mrs. Siddons was, on and off the stage, "two different people." On the stage she was a passionate emotion-hypnotized into passionate ecstasies by the sight of a drop curtain and the boards, at all events to the casual observer, more than a thought too much a loving mother and British matron, loving to be seen and of good report, but in the tower of an unobtrusive nature. Had she not been an actress she might have made (such an observer might have said) an ideal bishop's wife.

GERMANY FACES A GIGANTIC LOCKOUT

Suspension Of Building Operations Throughout Empire Threatened Unless Unions Accept Ultimatum.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Berlin, April 11.—The last moment, this week will bring an almost complete suspension of building operations throughout Germany, as the immediate result of the general lock-out threatened by the organized employers in the building trades unless the labor unions should accept their ultimatum. The organization of the employers comprises about 25,000 members throughout the country and the lockout will involve directly about 400,000 building workmen and indirectly more than one million of other workers, in some way allied with or dependent upon the building trades. Numerous efforts to bring about a compromise have been made by the government and prominent officials, but failed in every case.

SOUTH ATLANTIC LEAGUE OPENED SEASON TODAY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

The league this year comprises six clubs, Knoxville and Chattanooga having been dropped from the circuit. The schedule of the season provides for 120 games with August 27 as the greater part of the week.

FOES ONLY DURING DEBATE

And That Ended, Recriminating Senators Speedily Forget Their Differences.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

The late John J. Ingalls, senator from Kansas, let loose in the senate one day about Conkling, Hancock and several other distinguished people. His remarks were particularly acerbic.

Joe Blackburn, then senator from Kentucky, was chosen answer for Ingalls, and he took a good deal of hide off the brilliant Kansas. In one paragraph Blackburn said: "And this man has the temerity to assail Hancock—Hancock the Superb—who was giving of his life's blood on the heights of Gettysburg while the senators from Kansas were skulking along behind a regiment of Kansas Jayhawkers, trying those Jayhawkers in the capacity of judge advocates for robbing men more."

There was more of the same kind, and everybody thought there would be trouble, inasmuch as Ingalls was high spirited and Blackburn unflinching.

After the senate adjourned Blackburn and Ingalls met, face to face, in the corridor in front of the marble room. A dozen spectators looked for a change.

Ingalls stopped, looked squarely into Blackburn's eyes and Blackburn glared back.

"Joe," said Ingalls, putting out his hand, "isn't this cruel war over?"

"It is," said Blackburn, taking the offered hand, and they went off arm in arm.—Saturday Evening Post.

A Chance to Escape.

"Do you expect to have a garden this year?" "No, my wife says she is going to spend most of the time with her people down in Massachusetts, so I shall be here alone."

Birds of a Feather

It is not the policy of The Gazette to allude to its contemporaries. Nevertheless, we feel it proper to point out occasionally that The Gazette has been and is the leader, the creative force in journalism in Rock County. The advances in newspaper quality and the progress in helpfulness are conceived in The Gazette offices.

Those who follow know what the leader has done and is doing, but they do not know what he is going to do next. In short, the force that makes a leader maintains a leader.

We have emphasized to our advertisers the importance of being in front—of doing a thing first. Advertisers with this ambition will do well to consider the advantage of having their advertising associated with the newspaper which is first in circulation, first in initiative and first in influence here in Southern Wisconsin.

"PARTY UNITY" BANQUET TALK

TAFT IN SPEECH EXTENDS OLIVE BRANCH TO THE INSURGENTS.

"TIME FOR DOING THINGS"

President Says No Man Has Right to Read Another Out of Republican Fold—Demands Support for Measures Pledged.

Washington, April 11.—President Taft in his address before the League of Republican Clubs of the District of Columbia declared he was glad that the party of which he is the titular head still lives.

He went to the banquet with the determination not to sound a "key-note speech."

He announced his determination in his first sentence; but in the next few moments he had enunciated a call to party unity and a statement of his attitude toward insurgency which brought the diners to their feet with yells of approval.

The president declared he had no quarrel with the insurgents; that he sought to read no one out of the party, but that he proposed to demand the party should judge its members by the support they give to the party legislation during the remaining months of the present session of congress.

"Time for 'Doing Things.' This is not exactly the time for speaking, except in the two houses of the national legislature," said the president. "This is the time for doing things, the time for voting upon and passing the measures to which the party has pledged itself."

"After congress has adjourned, then is the time to form our lines of attack against the enemy."

"We are reading no one out of the Republican party. We want all of them within the party ranks. They have the opportunity to establish their claim to Republicanism by that which they shall do as legislators in both houses of congress; by helping to enact the legislation to which the party is pledged."

"By their fruits ye shall know them." Old friends who in good faith stand to the enactment of legislation to redeem the promises the party has made, have the right to stand forth as Republicans. If they don't want to stand with the party, or help the party to the enactment of its legislation, I have no quarrel with them. They have the right to vote, or speak as they will, but we want their aid as Republicans so long as they will be Republicans."

Republican Party is Not Rigid. "I don't want to say anything here that will seem to separate them from us, or to indicate that in their profession of Republicanism they are not as sincere as I hope I am. The Republican party is not a rigid party. We may not all agree in our opinions upon legislation, and we have the right to express those opinions within the party."

"But when the evidence is shown that a man does not desire to support the Republican party; when he shows himself unwilling to redeem for the party the pledges made to the people by the party; when he withdraws support from the party and wishes success for another party, then we have the right to say that the label he bears is not Republican."

Appeals for Party Harmony.

"No man has the right to read another man out of the Republican party. He reads himself out if he is disloyal to the party, and if not, he can, by his own words, show that he is loyal. So you see it is in no defiant spirit that I am here. I want the help of all Republicans, whether or not they may in the past have slipped away a little."

"We want them back to help that grand old party upon which the real progress of this country depends."

Painless Philosophizing

I hope when I get through with this terrible world to be able to get some comfort from the thought that "In my daily life I had been instrumental in really relieving humanity of some of its sufferings."

Of course, I need bread and butter, and am pushing my business by telling through these columns week after week and month after month of my painless work.

But with it all, there is actual relief to many third people who like a painless life today. "Had read my paper for so long that finally they came into confidence enough to trust themselves to my cure." And she went away thanking me profusely.

If I didn't advertise and bring this matter to folks' attention, these people would fare differently, and I know it.

It will be the same with you.

DAYLIGHT THEFT OF $25 FROM MILLER'S BAR THIS MORNING

Occured During Five Minute Interval While Proprietor Was Absent—Orderville Man Questioned.

In order to make change for a customer, Edward W. Miller emptied a small sack containing about $25 in currency on the back bar of his saloon at 12 North Franklin street at half past six o'clock this morning. He also stacked six silver dollars on the cash register and when the two patrons who had been standing in the place took their departure a few moments thereafter, the proprietor, without taking the precaution to distribute the money in the receptacle for that purpose, stepped out and walked rapidly to William Servino's barber shop a few doors away to talk with the owner at about five minutes and he returned it was found that the six silver dollars, two five dollar bills, a two dollar greenback and some paper money in dollar denominations as well as some other silver had been seized and carried away by someone who was in the great hurry to bother with quarters, fifty-cent pieces, and other small change. The back door had been left unlocked and Mr. Miller afterwards recalled the fact that in leaving the place he had seen an individual who had been in the place Saturday night moving through the adjoining alley.

This individual was questioned but was released later on evidence being found against him. It is safe to predict that Mr. Miller will take care hereafter not to absent himself from the place where there is money lying around loose. After the departure of the subjects, Officer Peter Clumppert sprayed the interior of the police station with insecticide.

TWO YOUTHS GUILTY OF BRUTAL ASSAULT ON A. J. HENNING

John Keating and Roy Simmons Were Unable To Pay Heavy Fines and Went To County Jail This Morning.

August J. Henning, former section foreman for the C. & N. W. railroad company and at present in the employ of William Linker on North bluff street, while on his way to the business district to get some medicine for his sick wife, was attacked by two half intoxicated fifteen year old youths on Railroad street, near the Hanson furniture factory, at half past six o'clock yesterday afternoon and brutally beaten about the face. To close a cut inflicted under the right eye Dr. Charles Sutherland had to take three stitches, and the skin was knocked off his nose and cheeks in several places.

John Keating and Roy Simmons were the youths in question. Keating, a native of Illinois, who is now in the employ of the Hanson furniture factory, was the one who attacked Henning. He was a match for him and when the latter, in a most gentlemanly way, said that he was unable to oblige him, Keating flew into a passion, applying some vile epithets and exclaiming, "You wouldn't give us a match if you had a whole boxful!" After beating up Henning, the young fellows ran to the railroad bridge. It was not long before the patrol wagon with Officers Patrick Manning and Sam Brown was out on their trail and when the fugitives got wind of the pursuit they fled to hide. Keating was wedged under a lumber pile near the old freight depot when Officer Manning got to him. Simmons had to be dragged out of a similar hole.

In municipal court this morning the two boys pleaded guilty to charges of assault and battery and offered no acceptable excuses for their malicious attack, beyond stating that they had bought a beer bottle full of whiskey from a tramp for fifty cents and had drunk a portion of the contents. "If you keep on in your present course Keating, you'll land in Waupun," said the court. Keating could not pay a fine of $25 and costs amounting to $1.50 and was committed to the county jail for not more than 26 days. Nor could Simmons pay the fine of $15 and costs amounting to $1.50 which were levied against him and the alternative is not to exceed 16 days in jail.

FIRST JANSVILLE-MADE CAR-SHIPED

Monitor Automobile Company Sent Two-cylinder Delivery Car to Memphis, Tenn., Saturday.

The first Janesville-made automobile for commercial use, manufactured by the Monitor Automobile Company, was shipped from the company's factory on N. Academy street Saturday to Memphis, Tenn. This consignment is the first beginning of an industry which, it is hoped, will mark a new era in the industrial development of Janesville.

The car was for delivery purposes, with a two-cylinder motor capable of developing twenty horsepower. It filled the first of a number of orders received from that city and the company expects to rush these orders to completion as fast as possible. There are over a hundred orders for cars now on file and it is not expected that the company can fill them this season. Most of the orders are for the kind of car shipped Saturday upon which the company backs its reputation. At the present time, there are no facilities for painting the cars at the factory and all the decorative work is being done by the Janesville Carriage company.

FIRE DEPARTMENT CALLED OUT BY THREE FALSE ALARMS

Apparatus at Machine Company Caused Unnecessary Runs.

The fire department was called out three times today in response to false alarms. The first came about eight o'clock this morning from box 21 at the corner of North Main street and Fourth avenue, a small boy pulling the alarm. At ten o'clock the engine went off a sprinkler head at the Janesville Machine company. Another alarm was sent in from the machine company's plant at 1:30, a disarrangement of the fire fighting apparatus causing the alarm to be sent in.

PULLMAN RATES ARE REDUCED BY RAIL BOARD

Interstate Commerce Body Takes Jurisdiction in Making Lower Charges.

Washington, April 11.—Because of a decision by the interstate commerce commission the traveling public is likely to rise up and bless that body. The reason for such action is that the commission has unequivocally taken jurisdiction of Pullman company rates and has emphasized that assumption of authority by reducing the company's rates in a half dozen notable instances.

That important stand by the commission appears in a decision by Commissioner Franklin K. Lane, made public. It is a decision that virtually convicts the Pullman concern of extortion and which, if it is affirmed upon an appeal to the Supreme court, will mean a very material reduction of rates throughout the country.

Upon general grounds the finding of the commission is important for two specific reasons. The first is that the commission takes jurisdiction of the sleeping car charges. The second is that the company is not justified in charging as much for an upper berth as it does for a lower. The decision of the commission is that the rates for upper berths should be only about seventy-five per cent. of the rates for lowers.

The findings of the commission were in specific cases, as between Chicago and St. Paul and St. Paul and the Pacific coast—but they show what the commissioners believe are just and equitable charges. Such are indicated to be two dollars for a full night's journey of 12 hours for lowers and $1.50 for the same journey on uppers.

MAY CALL AN EXTRA SESSION.

Investigation into Orgy is Demanded by Ministers and Others.

Trouton, N. J., April 11.—That the legislature may be called in special session to investigate the charges of a "Belshazzar revelry," participated in by the legislators and disreputable women in the committee room of the capitol building at the closing session, now appears probable.

Governor Fort intimated he would issue the call following requests made by Joseph S. Frothingham, president of the senate, and Mark A. Sullivan, minority leader of the house.

Gov. J. F. Fort.

Despite attempts in some quarters to minimize the extent of the orgies of the night, including a statement issued by Speaker Ward that he knew nothing of the presence of disreputable women in the building, other members of the assembly admitted that the scenes were disgraceful. They joined in the general demand for an investigation.

The clergymen are stirred up and from almost every pulpit in the city sermons were delivered denouncing the affair and those who had connection with it. It also is said that the ministers may ask the governor to promulgate a contractor who sent the women to join in the orgy.

PREACHES SERMON, IS SLAIN.

Editor and Elder Are Shot by Fanatic Who Escapes.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 11.—Editor Frank Skala of the Christian Journal, a Belgian publication, after preaching a sermon in the Second Presbyterian church mission of Woods Run, North side, was shot dead as he stepped from the church by Michael Hewit, a religious fanatic who also tried to kill Elder John Gay of the church mission. Gay is in a hospital with three bullets in his body and can scarcely recover, while the murderer of Skala has escaped. More than a hundred officers are searching western Pennsylvania for him.

Skala has been considered the leader of his people in western Pennsylvania.

Undesirable Immigrants.

There are some European immigrants which do not pass through Ellis Island but which get into Central park and cause much trouble. One of these immigrants is the wood leopard moth that passed through the custom house in an importation of goods and immediately took a hiding to the pine in the big park. Their destructive habits may be judged from the fact that they can gnaw a tree trunk an inch in diameter. The increase in the tribe of this tree destroying insect is said to be due in large part to the generosity of park visitors who provide food for the many song birds that come with warm weather. The insect eating birds find they don't have to work for their bread, and butter and as they become lazy the leopard moth thrives.—New York Sun.

Had Good Reason for So Doing, But Landlady Received Something of a Shock.

"In spite of the fact that it's so common these days, it made me uneasy," said the woman who keeps lodgers. "The professional nurse who rooms at my house—the one with a great pile of light brown hair—was called out on an emergency case night before last. When I went up in the morning to her room I found she had left her hair hanging by the mirror. I thought, of course, she was coming back, or would telephone for it, or send an A. D. T., or something. But the forenoon passed and no word came from the nurse. I kept going up to the room to look at that hair; it seemed to fascinate me; and then it got on my nerves. Don't know why, but I was obsessed that something had happened to the nurse. You know, they are such good lodgers—pay so well and out most of the time—that I take a special interest in them.

"So finally I thought to look in her curl book and found that she had left her number. Then I telephoned her. I was a good deal relieved, and a little amused, too. You see, she had gone out on a contagious case, and she doesn't wear her hair out at such times—too much trouble to keep it disinfected, she says. But she was grateful to me for calling up. Wouldn't I please put it away in the top bureau drawer. She had not intended to leave it out."

The Horrible Butcher.
Mabel, aged three, taken to the butcher shop for the first time, gazed in horror at the savagery on the floor. "Pa," she whispered, "does he butcher dolls?"

Your temper controls your life; therefore you should learn to control your temper.

FORCED TO PROPOSE

By ANNA WOODBRIDGE
Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

It was in the reign of King Edward of England, the fourth of that name, that John Ochiltree, a young farmer living in the county of Kent, met a lass called Mary Griggs at a Maying and conceived a strong passion for her. He danced with her around the Maypole and looked at her languishingly, but his modesty and the strength of his love tied his tongue so that he could say nothing to her.

Mary had been keeping company with Richard Doyle, a maker of armor, but the moment he had eyes on John Ochiltree, Doyle saw that she was lost to him in favor of his rival. He drew away sulky, thus leaving the field to the man who had supplanted him.

The day after the Maying John waited for Mary to come out of her father's thatched cottage and joined her. He managed to wish her "good morning" and said that the crops promised to be good and that one of his cows had calved, but besides this he said nothing. Mary was a girl of spirit and would not help him on. She said to herself that he should talk to her like any other man or she would have none of him. He continued to show her by his expression that he was enamored of her, and when he looked at her eyes had a melancholy expression.

Now, as soon as John got away from her his tongue was unloosed, and he could say what he liked. He told his mother of his trouble and convinced her that it was impossible that he should tell Mary his love and ask her to marry him.

"Then," said his mother, "Mary must propose to you."

"She will never do that," sighed John.

"She must be made to. My son wishes her for a wife, and he must have her. Besides, Mary is a good girl and will have a good dowry. I wish her for a daughter-in-law. I have made up my mind that, since you are unable to ask Mary to be your wife, she shall claim you for her husband."

"And how will you do that, mother?"

"Never mind, so that I do it. We women have to get through the world by exercising our wits. We are not men, to force our way, so we have to plan."

Things went from bad to worse between John and Mary. Determined to force him to declare himself, she encouraged her former suitor. This made John ill, and so great was his ailment that his mother feared he would die. She went to Mary and, telling her of John's condition and the cause, begged her to do that which was expected of the sterner sex—ask John to be her husband. Mary vowed that she would be no man's wife who had not the courage to ask her, and, though John might die, she would not do his part for him.

Not long after this a sheep belonging to a neighbor was found in John Ochiltree's fold. John was arrested for sheep stealing and thrown into prison. "The lad has lost his mind for love of you," said John's mother to Mary. The lass was secretly troubled, but tossed her head and said that a man who was afraid of a girl had no mind to lose.

John was tried and convicted and sentenced to be hanged.

Then Mary began to regret that she had refused to be persuaded. But it was now too late. She had, driven John into insanity, for she believed what his mother said, or she had unintentionally bewitched him so that he had stolen a sheep. She sat at home mourning her sad fate at losing a man so defective. John's mother brought a request from her son that Mary should be present at his execution. Mary declared that she could not endure such a sight and would not go. But she was at last persuaded to grant this last boon to a man who was now persuaded she had driven to the scaffold, and on the morning of the hanging she went there with her lover's mother.

A crowd was gathered around the culprit, John, with the rope around his neck, had ascended a few steps of the ladder. He stopped and, seeing Mary below, said to her:

"Mary, save me."

"How can I do that, John?"

"It is the law that if one about to be executed be chained in marriage by any woman he shall go free."

"Is that so?" Mary asked of the sheriff.

"If you claim this man in marriage I dare not hang him."

"Oh, Mary," cried John, "have mercy on me."

"Save him," whispered the culprit's mother.

Mary hesitated. "No," she said at last; "let him hang."

John staggered, then seemed relieved. He climbed nimbly up the other rungs of the ladder, and the sheriff was about to swing him off when Mary cried:

"Hold! I claim this man in marriage."

John was taken down, and the lovers, of whom the one couldn't and the other wouldn't till death was imminent, fell into each other's arms.

John's mother had stolen the sheep and placed it in her fold to bring about the result and force Mary to make the proposition. And yet we are told that women have not the heads that men have to accomplish results.

What Everybody Says

The following is what it is said after the engagement is announced of almost any girl to almost any man:

The Girl Herself—If I like to see Lillian's face when she reads the society news—if she ever does anything so intellectual as to read! She's always been perfectly crazy about Bob and she'll be utterly furious! She'll try to make people think she could have had him if she'd wanted him, but every one knows how she has chased him for months. I wonder if any one will send Arthur a paper. Poor boy! It will be such a blow to him! If ever a man was devoted to a girl he was to me. I'll always feel that I've ruined his life. He's one of the constant kind that never gets over such a disappointment. I wish I could decide whether I want a white satin or a crepe meteor wedding dress.

The Man Himself—Yes, they've got my name spelled right, after all. Good! It's something like reading your own obituary notice. It's so formal! Anyhow, it's nobody's business but ours and I don't see any use of all this foolishness in print! Every idiot I know'll be around to see me to-morrow and tell me how to be happy though married! Well, it will settle McKenzie all right—he won't be sending Edith flowers now in that airy, oh-I've-gotta-chance-yet way of his. I always wanted to kick him. Robert Rogerson Fairburn—yes, that's me, all right. Well, life begins to look real and earnest now. I wonder if Ethel won't kind of think when she reads this that maybe she wasn't so bright after all running off and marrying Smith just because she had quarreled with me. She's had three years of pretty rough studding with him. Of course it's all for the best so far as I'm concerned, but—I wonder!

Lillian—What! You don't tell me Bob is really engaged to Edith! Well, what do you think of that! It's most remarkable how men do these weird things when they are reduced to desperation, isn't it? Poor Bob! Of course Edith is a very nice girl—so capable and domestic and all that—but, my dear, did you ever see a girl so dowdy, and with so little style? I am sure Mrs. Noah did her hair up in precisely that same way in the days of the ark. Bob always did love pretty things—that's one reason he hung around me so much. Some men never notice a new gown or a smart hat, but he always does. No, I'm awfully fond of Bob, but mercy! I never could fall in love with him! Never! I suppose he realized it at last! Poor Bob!

Arthur—Hello! Edith's going to marry Bob Fairburn! Well, well! Nice little girl, Edith! Seems to me I had a crush on her myself once. She had the biggest brown eyes—no that wasn't Edith—it was Mabel. I remember now that Edith's eyes were blue. Or were they hazel? Where in creation did I put that tobacco? Hey—Ferguson! Got any tobacco?

McKenzie (who sent flowers to Edith)—One by one the roses fall! So Edith is going to shake us all for Bob Fairburn! It was worth the florists' bills, getting him mad. He seemed to think that every one was in a conspiracy to take his girl away from him. Edith's too quiet for me. But it paid to stand in with the family—her father's tips on the stock market were all right.

Ethel (who married Smith)—Oh, Teddy! Guess who's going to get married now—one of my old beaux! No, not that one—Bobbie Fairburn! Why, of course you remember him! He took me to that party where I first met you—and was crazy mad because you had four dances! I used to think I rather liked him, but that was before you came along! I can't imagine why I ever was so foolish. Goodness! What if I had really married him! I had an awful time working up a quarrel with him so as to let him down easily. I hated to be downright brutal and drop him, so I seized on the first chance for a fight. It was awfully funny, now that I think of it! Well, Bobbie was a nice boy in his own way. I wonder who she is—I never heard of her.

Edith's Relatives (individually and collectively)—Well, I suppose this means another wedding present. It was perfectly idiotic of grandfather to start that custom of always giving the brides in the family solid silver. Something less expensive would do exactly as well. I suppose Edith will expect a huge tray just because her cousin got one from us. Maybe we can strike a sale. Anyhow, she is throwing herself away on Bob Fairburn. His family are simply nobodies. Well, she's 25 and I suppose she had to take what she could get.

Bob's Relatives—And when he had such a good chance to marry Senator Goldmine's daughter! And her shaky social position and her father and all! Why, he's simply burying himself. Bob always was stubborn. What can be seen in Edith? She simply angled for him, that's all, and a man is so helpless! Poor Bob!

This country could no doubt be run a great deal better if it wasn't for the constitutional objection an American has to letting anyone run him.

Germs in Schoolrooms.

In the course of a report on the disinfection of schoolrooms, W. H. Marsh, an English science teacher, asserts that tests made of samples of schoolroom dust showed the number of micro-organisms therein to be from 50,000,000 to 50,000,000 an ounce. On some days as much as one and one-quarter pounds of dust was swept from a room 400 square feet in area, which, on the basis of the figures quoted, would yield from 1,000,000,000 to 1,500,000,000 micro-organisms.

Sailors Outwitted Pirates.

Merre Lohat, a retired sea captain, has just died near Bordeaux at the age of 102. He was only 11 when he went to sea as a cabin boy, and later, while serving in a French bark, he was taken captive by Spanish pirates. He and his fellow prisoners succeeded in overpowering their captors, taking command of the vessel and bringing it safely into a French port, where the pirates were handed over to the law.

Country's Real Backbone.

Trade increases the wealth and glory of a country; but its real strength and stamina are to be looked for among the cultivators of the land. In their simplicity of life is found the simplicity of virtue—the integrity and courage of freedom. These true genuine sons of the earth are invincible; and they surround and hem in the mercantile bodies, even if these bodies could be supposed disaffected to the cause of liberty.

Rugs, Carpets, Curtains and Draperies

The remarkable early spring weather has crowded things. Housecleaning is being seriously considered by many and others have already entered into the heat of the fray. You know what housecleaning means. It means that such things as curtains, draperies and floor coverings that you thought were plenty good enough will have to be replaced.

Last week was a very active one in the carpet and curtain departments. If we were to tell you how many large rugs we sold you might think we were prevaricating. Our out of town business is so large that a person buying a rug here seldom sees the same style again. Newcomers are always surprised to see such a stock of floor coverings. Local people are familiar with the fact that we show tremendous assortments, and that is the reason we keep so many people from going away to buy, as many have learned to their sorrow in times past after buying out of the city that they could have fared better at home.

With the leading makes of rugs we show and with practically every size and pattern made by the manufacturers we represent, it is not strange that people naturally come to The Big Store.

Same Way With Curtains

Regarding the curtain situation we wish to say very emphatically that we are on an entirely different basis than any retail store in the state. It is not generally known, and it may be news to you that we do a very large wholesale business in curtains and nets, having handled from 45,000 to 50,000 pairs of curtains in the past 7 months, to say nothing of the thousands of pieces of drapery nets.

You will readily appreciate our advantages, both in buying and selling and also the great selections we are able to show to our retail trade.

We can display our immense stocks to much better advantage than ever before in the new greatly enlarged curtain and carpet section on the second floor.

If you have a want in these lines, consult your best interests by getting posted on what is going on at The Big Store.

GOOD ADVICE TO

THE YOUNG MEN

GIVEN BY REV. T. D. WILLIAMS IN

SERMON LAST EVENING.

CATALOG OF FORTUNES

Which Are Possessed By Every

Healthy, Happy Young Man, Who

Has Any Ambition To Become Himself.

That every healthy, Christian young man has a fortune just as rich as a herald of gold was the statement of

Rev. T. D. Williams of Carroll Memorial

Methodist church last evening in speaking on the subject, "The Young Man and a Catalog of His Fortunes."

"To be a young man now," said

Rev. Williams, "is to be able to realize the opportunities of thousands of years. He has education back of him and the prospects of an immense and undreamed-of development ahead of him.

"Every young man has a fortune;

yes, several of them. He has a fortune in his body—a remarkable piece of mechanism, just together with infinite skill. When we stop to think of the possibilities of the human body

we are astounded. It is interesting to hear the reasons why people go to doctors. Some go because they like to see the animals, others go because their children like to go, or if they have an ailment of their own, they borrow the neighbor's children. I would go to see the skill of the performer, I would wonder at the marvelous capacity for training of the human body. What money value do you put on a healthy body? What would you take for your body?

"I don't know what I'd take for my body. A doctor of Chicago paid a certain doctor one hundred thousand dollars for an operation which enabled his daughter to run about and play as other children do and a certain millionaire has offered one million dollars for a new stomach.

"A man stands on a street in Milwaukee recently and threw nickels and dimes to the crowd of people who stood around. You say that man was crazy to throw away nickels like that. What would you say of the man who throws away the strength and vitality of his body. Young men,

God has given you a fortune in your bodies. Take care of that fortune.

"A young man has a fortune in his intellect, his mind, his memory and his imagination. Man is supreme over the animals and members of the other kingdoms of this world, but man's dominion over things does not consist entirely in the strength of his body. It is because man's mind is superior to that of the animal or whatever it may be.

"There is a fortune in the human brain. Alice Hegun Rice, the writer of those two books, "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" and "Lovesy

Mury" received sixty thousand dollars for her work.

"Young man, when you have the time and the opportunity I am going to send you on a grand errand. I want you to go through the world of an income asylum. I want you to study the inmates there and when you come back I want you to tell me what you will take for your brain.

"A young man has a fortune in the influence of women upon him. God intended man and woman should be together and ever since Eve smiled on Adam woman has been smiling cheer and inspiration on men. A multitude of examples could be found of men who claim that they get their inspiration from mother, wife, daughter or sister.

"Every young man has a fortune in his friends, provided he selects his friends with discrimination. Society has its dogs and cats, the goodly, and others of that ilk and the young man is in danger of seeking that kind of friends.

"A young man's ideals are a part of his fortune. Every young man has a fortune also in the teachings of Christianity. You will need Christianity in times of prosperity and such guidance as Christianity can give.

He needs Christianity in times of sorrow. The Gospel of Jesus Christ

comes to reinforce the heart in times of adversity and trouble. Young men,

I want you to fortify yourself with God's word.

54-40 OR FIGHT

BY EMERSON HOUGH
AUTHOR OF "THE FIFTY-FIFTY DOLLAR
ILLUSTRATIONS BY MAGNUS G. KETNER
Copyright 1909 by Boston-Hillman Co.

"Calhoun, are you mad?" cried his friend. "Would you plunge this country into war? Would you pit two people, like cocks on a floor? And would you use women in our diplomacy?"

Calhoun now was no longer the friend, the humanitarian. He was the relentless machine; the idea; the single purpose, which to the world at large he had been all his life in congress, in cabinets on this or the other side of the throne of American power. He spoke coldly as he went on:

"In these matters it is not a question of means, but of results. If war comes, let it come; although I hope it will not come. As to the use of women—tell me, why not women? Why anything else but women? It is only playing life against life; one virtue against another. That is politics, my friend. I want Pakenham. So, I must learn what Pakenham wants. Does he want Texas for England, or the baroness von Ritz for himself?"

Ward still sat and looked at him. "My God!" said he at last, softly; but Calhoun went on:

"Why, who has made the maps of the world, and who has written pages in its history? Who makes and un-makes cities and empires and republics to-day? Woman, and not man!"

"I Don't Pretend to Know Now All You Mean."

Are you so ignorant—and you a physician, who know them both? God, man, you do not understand your own profession and yet you seek to counsel me in mine!"

"Strange words from you, John," commented his friend, shaking his head; "not seemly for a man who stands where you stand today."

"Strange weapons—yes. If I could always use my old weapons of tongue and brain I would not need these perhaps. Now you tell me my time is short. I must fight now to win. I cannot be too slow in agents and instructions."

The old doctor rose and took a turn up and down the little room, one of Calhoun's modest menage at the nation's capital, which then was not the city it is today. Calhoun followed him with even steps.

"Changes of maps, my friend? Listen to me. The geography of America for the next 50 years rests under a little roof over in M-street to-night—a roof which Sir Richard secretly maintains. The map of the United States, I tell you, is covered with a down counterpane a deus, to-night."

You ask me to go on with my fight. I answer, that I must find the woman. Now, I say I have found her, as you know. Also, I have told you where I have found her. Under a counterpane! Texas, Oregon, these United States under a counterpane!"

Dr. Ward sighed as he shook his head. "I don't pretend to know now all you mean."

Calhoun whirled on him fiercely, with a vigor which his wasted frame did not indicate as possible.

"Listen, then, and I will tell you what John Calhoun means—John Calhoun, who has loved his own state, who has hated those who hated him, who has never prayed for those who deeply used him, who has fought and will fight, since all insist on that. It is true Tyler has offered me again today the portfolio of secretary of state. Shall I take it? If I do, it means that I am employed by this administration to secure the admission of Texas. Can you believe me when I tell you that my ambition is for it all—every foot of new land, west to the Pacific, that we can get, slave or free? Can you believe John Calhoun, prophetic advocate and orator all his life, when he says that he believes he is an humble instrument destined, with God's aid, and through the use of such instruments as our human society affords, to build, not a wider slave country, but a wider America?"

"It would be worth the fight of a few years more, Calhoun," gravely answered his old friend. "I admit I had not dreamed this of you."

"History will not write it of me, perhaps," went on my chief. "But you tell me to fight, and now I shall fight, and in my own way. I tell you, that answer shall go to Pakenham. And I tell you Pakenham shall not dare to take offense at me. War with Mexico we possibly, indeed certainly, shall have. War on the northwest, too, we yet may have—unless—" He paused; and Dr. Ward prompted him some moments later, as he still remained in thought.

"Unless what, John? What do you mean—still hearing the rustle of skirts?"

"Yes—unless the celebrated baroness Helena von Ritz says otherwise," replied he grimly.

"How dignified a diplomacy have we here! You play war between two empires on the distaff side!" smiled Dr. Ward.

Calhoun continued his walk. "I do not say so," he made answer; "but, if there must be war, we may reflect that war is at its best when woman is in the field!"

CHAPTER II.

By Special Dispatch.

In all eras and all cities a woman of great genius or beauty has done what she chose—Goddess.

"Nicholas," said Calhoun, turning to me suddenly, but with his invariable kindness of tone, "oblige me to-night. I have written a message here. You will see the address—"

"I have unavoidably heard this lady's name," I hesitated.

"You will find the lady's name above the seal. Take her this message from me. Yes, your errand is to bring the least known and most talked of woman in Washington, alone, unattended save by yourself, to a gentleman's apartments, to his house, at a time past the hour of midnight! That gentleman is myself! You must not take any answer in the negative."

As I sat dumbly, holding this sealed document in my hand, he turned to Dr. Ward, with a nod toward myself.

"I choose my young aide, Mr. Trist here, for good reasons. He is just back from six months in the wilderness, and may be shy; but once he had a way with women, so they tell me—and you know, in approaching the question of feminism we operate per hominem."

Dr. Ward took snuff with violence as he regarded me critically.

"I do not doubt the young man's sincerity and faithfulness," said he. "I was only questioning one thing."

"Yes."

"His age."

Calhoun rubbed his chin. "Nicholas," he said, "you heard me. I have no wish to encumber you with useless instructions. Your errand is before you. Very much depends upon it, as you have heard. All I can say is, keep your head, keep your feet, and keep your heart!"

The two older men both turned now, and smiled at me in a manner not wholly to my liking. Neither was this errand to my liking.

It was true, I was hardly arrived home after many months in the west; but I had certain plans of my own for that very night, and although as yet I had made no definite engagement with my fiancée, Miss Elizabeth Churchill of Elmhurst farm, for meeting her at the great ball this night, such certainty was my desire and my intention. Why, I had heard some Elizabeth twice in the last year.

"He might be older," said Calhoun at length, speaking of me as though I were not present. "And 'tis a hard game to play. If once my lady Helen takes it into her merry head to make it so for him. But if I sent one shorter of stature and uglier of visage and with less art in approaching a crinoline—why, perhaps he would get no farther than her door. No; he will serve—he must serve!"

He arose now, and bowed to us both, even as I rose and turned for my cloak to shield me from the raw drizzle which then was falling in the streets.

So this, then, was my errand. My mind still tingled at its unwelcome quality. Dr. Ward guessed something of my mental dissatisfaction.

"Never mind, Nicholas," said he, as we parted at the street corner, where he climbed into the rickety carriage which his colored driver held awaiting him. "Never mind. I don't myself quite know what Calhoun wants; but he would not ask of you anything personally improper. Do his errand, then. It is part of your work. In any case—" and I thought I saw him grin in the dim light—"you may have a night which you will remember."

"There proved to be truth in what he said."

CHAPTER III.

In Argument.

The egotism of women is always for two—Mine; De Ritel.

The thought of missing my meeting with Elizabeth still rankled in my soul. Had it been another man who asked me to carry this message, I must have refused. But this man was my master, my chief, in whose service I had engaged.

For myself, his agent, I had, as I say, left the old Trist homestead at the foot of South mountain in Maryland, to seek my fortune in our capital city. I had had some three or four years' semi-diplomatic training when I first met Calhoun and entered his service as assistant. It was under him that I finished my studies in law. Meantime, I was his messenger in very many quests, his source of information in many matters, where he had no time to go into details.

Strange enough had been some of the circumstances in which I found myself thrust through this relation with a man so intimately connected for a generation with our public life. For six months I had been in Mississippi and Texas studying matters and men, and now, just back from Natchitoches, I felt that I had earned some little rest.

Vaguely in my conscience I felt that, after all, my errand was justified, even though at some cost to my own wishes and my own pride. The farther I walked in the dark along Pennsylvania avenue, into which finally I swung after I had crossed Rock bridge, the more I realized that perhaps this big game was worth playing in detail and without quibble as the master mind should dictate.

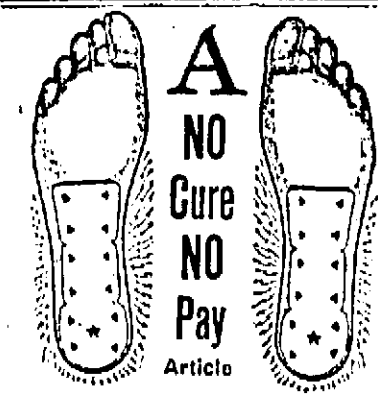

I was, indeed, young—Nicholas Trist, of Maryland; six feet tall, thin, lean, always hungry, perhaps a trifle freckled, a little sandy of hair, blue I suppose of eye, although I am not sure; good rider and good marcher, I know; something of an expert with the weapons of my time and people; fond of a horse and a dog and a rifle—yes, and a glass and a girl, if truth be told. I was not yet 30, in spite of my western travels. At that age the rustle of silk or dimity, the suspicion of adventure, tempts the worst of the best of us, I fear. Woman!—the very sound of the word made my blood leap then. I went forward rather blithely, as I now blush to confess. "If these are made to be made to-night," said I, "the baroness Helena shall do her share in writing on my chief's old mahogany desk, and not on her own dressing case."

"That was an idle boast, though made but to myself. I had not yet met the woman."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Names of Dress Materials.

As a general rule it is pretty safe to guess that the name of a dress material comes from some place. Besides such obvious cases as "astrakhan," "cashmere" and "tweed" there are "faux" (the humble analogue of velvet) from Fustat (Cairo); "mullin," from Mount in Mesopotamia; "damask," from Damascus; and "cambric," from Cambria, while "millinery" itself is from Milan.—London Chronicle.

SOUNDS PARTY CALL IN TAFT'S DEFENSE

Attorney General Wickersham Smiles
Insurgents in Reviewing Administrations Work.

Chicago, April 11.—In the most aggressive defense that has yet been uttered for the policies and administration of William H. Taft, Attorney General Wickersham, at the Appomattox celebration of the Hamilton club, smote the Republican insurgents hip and thigh, reviewed the acts of the first year of the administration, and declared that every pledge made in the Republican platform of 1908 had been fulfilled to the extent of the possible limits of executive action.

And he concluded with the following warning or appeal that reminded many of those at the banquet of the scriptural words: "He who is not with us is against us."

"I speak to an assembly of loyal Republicans. I am sure I voice your thought when I say the time of running with the hare and hunting with the hounds is over and every one must choose whether or not he is for the president and the Republican party. He that hath no stomach to the fight let him depart. Treason has ever consisted in giving aid and comfort to the enemy. If anyone wishes to join the Democratic party let him do so. But let him not claim to be a Republican and in and out of season work to defeat Republican measures and to subvert the influence of the Republican president."

He declared that every pledge made by the Republican party had been fulfilled as far as it lay in the power of the administration to fulfill it, and in support of this thesis touched to a greater or less extent on practically every matter of legislative or executive policy that has been a matter of controversy.

All blame for non-fulfillment of pledges he placed on congress, to which, he said, President Taft had caused to be submitted the bills embodying the promised legislation.

And tracing the blame still farther he found that if the bills failed to pass congress it would be due to the action of the insurgents, whom he did not hesitate to class as "traitors" and selfish obstructionists.

SAMUEL GOMPERS IS ANGERED.

Is Stopped in His Speech at Scientists' Meeting.

Philadelphia, April 11.—Scenes up-proaching dangerously near disorder marked the session of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, when Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, was stopped before he had finished his speech.

Gompers had spoken against the right of courts to issue injunctions, and had occupied the platform about half an hour, when Chairman Neill touched him on the shoulder, informing him that his time was nearly up.

Gompers gathered up his notes in obvious disgust and as he turned to resume his chair he bore an expression indicating that the head of organized labor was an angry man.

Instantly there were cries from all over the house for the labor leader to go on with his speech, but he doggedly shook his head, and Chairman Neill hastily declared the meeting adjourned.

VITALITY.

Food does not produce vitality. The digestion and elimination of food, necessary to maintain the physical and mental functions, discharges or consumes vitality; and this must continue as long as life lasts. The nervous system, including brain, solar plexus and connecting nerves for receiving impressions and transmitting emotions, sensory and motor nerves, is like a dynamo and telegraph system, with sub stations, the stored energy being discharged by the excitation of the food, providing heat and force and function. The tissues are consumed during a fast. All the elements of nutrition, 14, are necessary, in definite proportions, perfect for the infant in milk, and in varying proportions in most plants and in animal flesh. When the quantity of food is excessive, when the elements are disproportionate, or when physical or mental conditions interfere with the assimilation of food, there is waste of vitality. Life continues as long as vitality lasts, and vitality is wasted in improper and excessive eating more than by sickness or work, as the cases of prolonged life would indicate, notably that of Cornaro and of old Parr, and other centenarians. Vitality is an hereditary endowment and may be conserved or squandered, and most by improper diet.

WORTH MOUNTAINS OF GOLD

During Change of Life, says Mrs. Chas. Barclay

Grantville, Vt.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish the letter."—Mrs. Chas. Barclay, 11 E. D. Grantville, Vt.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures of female ills as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been curing female complaints such as inflammation, ulceration, local weakness, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion, and is well known for carrying women safely through the period of change of life. It costs but little to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and, as Mrs. Barclay says, it is "worth mountains of gold" to suffering women.

Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is for sale at Smith's Pharmacy, The Rexall Store, as well as other Patent Medicines advertised in this paper.
